

NSG 337 - Maternity and Women's Health Care

Concentrates on the nursing care of women from menarche to menopause with a primary focus on childbearing. Basic concepts of normal and abnormal anatomy and physiology of pregnancy, childbirth, and the postpartum will be addressed. The application of a transcultural nursing process in family-centered childbirth, women's health promotion, risk reduction, and disease prevention will be studied.

Prerequisites & Notes

Adv Code: A

Prereq: BIO 151/151L, NSG 201

Coreq: NSG 209, 329/329L, NSG 337L

Credits: 2

NSG 337L - Maternity and Women's Health Care Lab

Concentrates on the nursing care of women from menarche to menopause with a primary focus on childbearing. Basic concepts of normal and abnormal anatomy and physiology of pregnancy, childbirth, and the postpartum will be addressed. The application of a transcultural nursing process in family-centered childbirth, women's health promotion, risk reduction and prevention will be studied.

Prerequisites & Notes

Adv Code: A

Co-requisite: NSG 209, 329/329L, 337

Clinical assignment is off campus

Credits: 1